Krrish: Earned ₹24 crore that day.

Ramayana: Earned about ₹13 crore more, despite its much larger budget and prominent stars; the speaker considered this underwhelming.

Dubbed-language performance: Kannada, Tamil and Malayalam collections rose on Sunday compared with Saturday, but not enough to lift the all-India total.

Day-four trend: Collections moved from ₹65 crore at opening to ₹48 crore, then ₹70 crore, and finally ₹56 crore; the speaker described the overall decline as nearly 20%.

Comparison with Spider-Man: Brand New Day: The speaker said the Hollywood film earned ₹258 crore in India in its first four days, more than Ramayana's ₹239 crore all-India net.

Context: The speaker cautioned that the Diwali period affected comparisons and mentioned a ₹500 crore net collection for Spider-Man.

Ramayana's Opening Weekend and Box-Office Position

3/12

Worldwide opening weekend: Reported at about ₹507 crore, a strong total by Indian-cinema standards.

Historical ranking:

Top group: Only about eight or nine Indian films have reached this opening-weekend range, depending on whether Ramayana is included.

Ramayana's position: Eighth on the list described in the discussion.

Comparison caveat: Films on the list had different opening periods, including three-, four-, and five-day weekends; Pathaan had five days.

Remaining gap:

Dhurandhar 2: About ₹240 crore ahead after four days.

Pushpa 2: About ₹288 crore—nearly ₹300 crore—ahead in opening-weekend comparisons.

Factors affecting performance: A pre-Diwali release and being Part One are presented as disadvantages.

Possible trend: The speaker expects Ramayana to rise from Monday while other films may decline; this is framed as a hope, not a confirmed outcome.

Overseas Earnings and Record Claims

4/12

Overseas gross: About ₹222 crore, compared with roughly ₹285 crore gross in India, including taxes.

Importance of overseas earnings: The overseas contribution lifts the worldwide total to a respectable level; it is close to the Indian gross.

Claimed daily record:

Ramayana: Reportedly earned $7.3 million overseas in one day, on Saturday.

Baahubali 2: The previous record cited was $7 million in one day, set nine years earlier.

Data timing: Overseas figures may be updated later because markets finish their days at different times.

Reported worldwide opening: Some news agencies and websites cite $55.7 million; the speaker distinguishes this producer-reported figure from rupee totals.

Comparison with Godzilla Minus One

5/12

Godzilla Minus One: $63 million.

Ramayana: Reported at $55.7 million, somewhat lower but not by a large margin.

Godzilla's advantages:

Established franchise: The Godzilla name and intellectual property were already popular.

Sequel recognition: It was Part Two; the first film had won an Oscar and was described as well regarded.

Market comparisons:

Japan: Godzilla's home-market opening was $17 million.

India: Ramayana's opening was about $32 million, nearly twice as much.

United States: Godzilla earned $31 million, compared with Ramayana's $12 million.

Other markets: Ramayana reportedly ranked first in the UK and Australia.

Release Reach and Markets Still to Open

6/12

Planned reach: Publicity mentioned a release across 500 screens, but the discussion says a major expected market had not yet opened.

China:

Status: No confirmed release date was available in the account.

Rumours: December and January were mentioned; a claim of release on the 12th was called false for mainland China.

Hong Kong: The film was reportedly scheduled to release there on the 12th.

Other markets: Several international territories were still awaiting release around November 12.

Overall assessment: The speaker describes domestic performance as not yet especially strong, while overseas earnings were substantial; together they produced a respectable total.
